While the OFSTED team work on writing our report, which should be with you in the next couple of weeks, I just wanted to thank a few people.

Firstly, thank you to all of the parents who returned their OFSTED questionnaires last week. I'm not sure of exact numbers but I do know that there were a lot!

Also I want to say thank you to the children and parents in Daley class. Many of them rearranged visits to secondary schools so that the inspection team could see Year 6 teaching and learning in action, with a full complement of pupils.

All of the children in the school were fantastically well behaved, as always, and members of the school council (who had only been in post for a week) spoke very well in their meeting with one of the inspectors.

All members of staff worked incredibly hard last week – as they do every week – and, by the time we get to October half term, will be deserving of a break.

Although having an inspection so early in the academic year can have some drawbacks, I am pleased that it has been completed. Now we can all really push on with our new initiatives and make sure that we meet, and hopefully exceed, our School Improvement Plan Targets.
